

ABSTRACT.

Aspects for data flow control of execution nodes of an adaptive computing engine (ACE) are presented. The aspects include associating task parameters with tasks within an execution node. Readiness of task resources is identified based on a status of the task parameters. Subsequently, allocation of the tasks to the execution node occurs based on the readiness of task resources.

5